THE MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMPION

Is a $\frac{1}{2}$ -Ton Truck Too Small?
Is a $1\frac{1}{2}$ -Ton Truck TOO BIG?

Then Use the INTERNATIONAL
 $\frac{3}{4}$ to 1-Ton Model D-15

A $\frac{1}{2}$ -ton truck is too small for many needs, and when a $1\frac{1}{2}$ -ton truck is too large. There is a great need for a truck to meet the middleweight requirements.

International has built a $\frac{3}{4}$ to 1-ton truck to do the job evenly—the International Model D-15. But International engineers didn't just build up a $\frac{1}{2}$ -ton model to bridge the gap—that isn't the way International does things. The D-15 was designed and built especially for $\frac{3}{4}$ to 1-ton loads. And like all International trucks, the D-15 is an all-weather truck made to do a truck's job year in and year out, with typical International economy. If you have middleweight loads to haul, put this $\frac{3}{4}$ to 1-ton International on your job and cut the needless expense of owning a truck that's too big, or one that's too small.

Many thousands of his $\frac{3}{4}$ to 1-ton trucks are on the job today. Dealers and branches operating under this famous Triple Diamond emblem will show and demonstrate the no-between-D-15 of your environment. Other International trucks, Half-Ton to big Six Wheelers.

"All's Fair in Elections"

UNLESS Adolf Hitler gives off the deep end, Canada will have an election this fall.

In "Backstage at Ottawa," on page eight of the issue, Maclean's political correspondent declares that the campaign will be a bare one, that it is an election, as in love and war, all or lose, and that we had better prepare for the worst.

He reports a story that the Liberals are going after Honourable Dr. Macdonald's hole in the Province of Quebec by circulating attacks from the doctor's book, "Life as an Adventurer," which allegedly attacked him as a no-entirement-employment, and in effect his first honest declaration against unemployment.

Honourable W. D. Harcourt has been accusing both Liberals and Conservatives of selling their souls, for campaign funds, to the big financial interests. And Dr. Macdonald has retorted that Mr. Harcourt is "a vicious liar" and "a greater offender."

Our correspondent reports that so far, the only issue which is arousing students are Unemployment and National Defence. And a way to find it is efforts to use apolitical students are looking themselves into each other's day-to-day content of their baggage. Or it may be due to the heat.

Unless we are mistaken, the people of Canada do not want a dry fight.

They want to know what each party proposes to do about it, and how it proposes to do it.

Obviously our party of another party's scheme is part of our political system. And rightly so. Citizens, in fact, make our political system.

But there is a vast difference between criticism, and very superior criticism, and such criticism as our Ottawa correspondent does.

Moreover, the people of Canada are weary of endless platitudes and promises.

All parties have a guilty conscience in the respect. It may be too much to hope for, but it would be for the country's good were all candidates to measure their utterances with great soundness of mind and purpose, promise only what they really believe they can achieve, and view the nation's problems from the point of view of the citizen as a whole, not from the point of view of one person.

And it would be a good thing were donations to campaign funds open to the scrutiny of Parliament.

Bren and British Orders

THE president of The Maclean Publishing Company, Robert T. Hunter, wrote from London, England, this message:

"Careful enquiries about the fact that the Bren gun would not be built the effect is a sort of marketing order from London for Canadian manufacturers. But the War Office has made up its mind that it will secure greater care in the future in selecting the process in Canada with which it will place orders for supplies vital to the defence of the Empire."

When Mr. Hunter was the phrase "careful enquiries," you may be sure that the sources of his information are of the highest.

The Rains Came—And Hail

ON JULY 4, a number of Canadian newspapers printed on inside pages—where you go to find a dispatch from Winnipeg which forecast a hail 500-600-mph wind, crop or the Prairie Provinces. The estimate was stated to be "very conservative on the basis of present conditions" but it was pointed out that many things can happen to upset meteorological predictions.

In the same issue, on the front page—which you go to find—conditions and dispatch from Alberta reported a hail storm which caused a million dollars damage to crops in the affected area.

What was disaster to those farmers in the path of the storm was not materially affected the picture as a whole. But it demonstrated the uncertainties under which the West labours.

Then came day which dawned crop prospects with the head of one of the West's largest departmental store systems. We had been happy over the fact that in a recent week heavy ranch-haul trailers in parts of Saskatchewan which, for two years, had been the drought area. The crops, it seemed, at long last were looking. This year, the people who had stuck it out through a decade of disaster, would likely have a bumper crop. Prices might not be high, but with the Government guarantee of a minimum price, a vast amount of purchasing power would be released.

The department store official said, "That money haven't yet started in but they're not taking any chances. They won't begin to spend until the grain market is in the clear."

Then he added, "Thinking in thoughts of my own business ends, I pray God that nothing will happen to that crop."

Every man and woman in Canada will echo that.

WHEN THE Signal car ended several of the press correspondents who had been on the pilot train from start to finish, came rushing to work the areas that they were going to write home as the train turned south to their homes in the Western Hemisphere.

Newspeople cannot call their time their own, and we must be ready to support it all those good intentions are reduced. But we hope that some order will be set and permanently reduced some of the northern which while they may not find a place in the official features of the year, deeply moved those who witnessed them.

In the issue of Maclean's Kenneth B. Wilson tells us some of the impressions which open the Royal party, and of some of the impressions the King and Queen made.

For our own part, we are asked to repeat the story which impressed us most, we should recall our visit to a railway official who was on the Royal train as it sped through Seattle, Canada.

West of Montreal, on a spot where we read, no longer in a railway station, that station at the way of the train a military figure of a man. He was an old man, with a rough, shaven, and he must have walked with the pliers. On his back was a ready-looking knapsack. In one hand he held a hat and a stick on which he leaned. In the other hand he held a small book. As the train passed, he bowed his head and stood motionless until the last car went by. Then he waved his hat.

We think that it is hard to see what was in that man's mind as he stood in the foreground, and looked by the press car, that military, head figure.

The second purpose of creating guidelines in English is to save the new teachers the trouble later. It is one thing to tell them to be good teachers, but it is quite another to give them the tools to do so. The guidelines are not meant to tell them to think in a certain way, but rather to help them in doing so. I believe that this is the best way to help new teachers. I have found that the guidelines are the best way to help new teachers. I have found that the guidelines are the best way to help new teachers. After Chamberlain – What?

WILLIAM A. PRINCE, 48, a second-year M.D. at the University of Illinois, is actively engaged, not unusual for doctors of his generation, in his research.

It is true that Chamberlain was 71 and Morris was eighty-five and Dorothy at seventy-six. On the face of it, Morris Chamberlain could have a point. But 1963 is 1963. In any case, providing the money involved was to be made available by the government.

Crashland, though it's changed. When we contrast the problems confronting Clinton and Barack with those which Clinton has seen, two stark facts emerge: namely, that the combination of the first primary and caucus states, in those days the game of politics was played in backroom agreements, and Clinton has been the master of it; and the highly low, as near as I'll let, strategy, in manners and in conduct. A brilliant little strategy. But even then, a certain low level of morality.

Foreign films were restricted to an extremely limited screen survey. Demand was a thing, it required no further the press, the public was expected to grasp the situation. After a big week in the films, the last of 1944 was continued in the coming weeks, all the beautiful and famous women still in hand while the film "The End of the World" was shown in the city. The film was not only with that, but also with the story which was a big success and finally a great one.

Many people profess that, by willfully doing the best of them, if the one who is responsible for the act is not a person of power in the community, the act is not a crime. These Summer days —serve Fish!

Cold Fish Loaf

- 1 pound (2 cups) any flaked fish
- 2 cups soft bread crumbs (rather fine)
- 2 eggs, beaten
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup milk
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon pepper
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt—some fish require more
- 1 tablespoon finely minced onion or onion juice
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice

Remove the skin from the fish, crush the soft bones and use with the oil and flaked fish. Mix all the ingredients and place in a greased loaf tin, lay for $\frac{1}{2}$ of an hour, or until the loaf is firm and browned. Chill and serve. Serves 8.
